The Cite It! widget allows you to add articles to your reading lists as well as link out to electronic copies as available.

Where and when you choose to use the Cite It! widget will impact whether the reading list goes directly to the article or to an intermediate search results page.

“View online”
If the Cite It! widget is used while on the Melvyl search results page, then the widget will point back to this search result. Users may get to the article by using one of the online links contained on the search results page.

This may benefit users who have a preference for one online platform over another and who can then select how they would prefer to access the article. However, this does create an extra step for the user before they can access the article.

“View Links”
If the Cite It! widget is used while viewing the actual online resource, then the widget will point back directly to that article.
